Kristi's Book Nook By Kristi Bernard The month of February isn't just for celebrating National Freedom Day, Ground Hog Day, Boy Scout Day or Thank A Mailman Day. It's for celebrating President's Day too. This short but informational tool is full of illustrations that give readers a peek into the lives of two very well known heroes who became president of the United States. Readers will learn about George

Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Their journey to run the country was with hard work, loyalty to the people and the willingness to make America a great place to live. George Washington was born February 22, 1732 in the British colony of Virginia. His first job was as a surveyor where he explored and mapped the Virginia frontier. Later he joined the army and became a commander. Abraham Lincoln was born in the state of Kentucky on February 1, 1809. He grew up poor and loved to read. He would often go to the general store because he loved to read newspapers and talk to people. One day he carried goods to New Orleans where he saw slaves being traded. He thought then it was wrong and that everyone should be free. When his family moved to Illinois he went to school to study law. From there he ran for a state election and won. The rest for these two heroes, is history. Author deRubertis has put together a great pair of heroes from the Holiday Heroes series. Parents, teachers and students will love the short bursts of facts shared along with the photo's and colorful illustrations. This is a great way to learn about Americans and our history.

The stories of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln are told in a single book not only to celebrate the important February holiday, but also to compare and contrast the lives of these two towering Americans. Though they lived at different times, they shared similar problems, triumphs, and traits of leadership.
