biased, but how could anyone not be moved and inspired? I am very grateful for the kind folks who have created such a beautiful book.

Lost Souls: FOUND! Inspiring Stories About Pets with Disabilities, Vol. III is the final installment in Happy Tails Books series featuring pets who, with the help of loving, caring guardians, have overcome incredible obstacles to make the most out of their lives. The stories included in this book highlight how each pet, despite any difficulty, has become an indispensable family member and how the humans attached to these pets truly see these challenges as blessings instead of burdens. From the Back Cover: Three-legged Ella has two sides: her crazy, unfocused, wild side that emerges when she's challenging her Newf sister, Zoe, and her motherly, gentle, loving side that she shows to blind Jake. I have a 20-second rule for Ella, during which she must focus before I allow her to go wild again. In my opinion, she has earned the right to get a little crazy and to soak up every bit of her surroundings, so I reward her with that leeway once she gets through the 20 seconds. Ella certainly has a lot of living to do after being discarded by her breeder and almost not living at all! We should all be such a sponge for life! Judy Robinson

About the Author Kyla Duffy and Lowrey Mumford are dog lovers who wish to use the Lost Souls: FOUND! series of books to raise awareness about dog adoption and generate funds for rescue groups through the donation of a portion of each sale. Lowrey knows journalism, and Kyla has experience in entrepreneurship; this has created the perfect synergy to launch the Happy Tails Books project. Lowrey has two adopted dogs of her own. Kyla has two adopted dogs and continues to foster dogs for a dog rescue organization.
